EASTERN HIGH SCHOOL

Greentown, Indiana

Eastern Jackson

Eastern Union

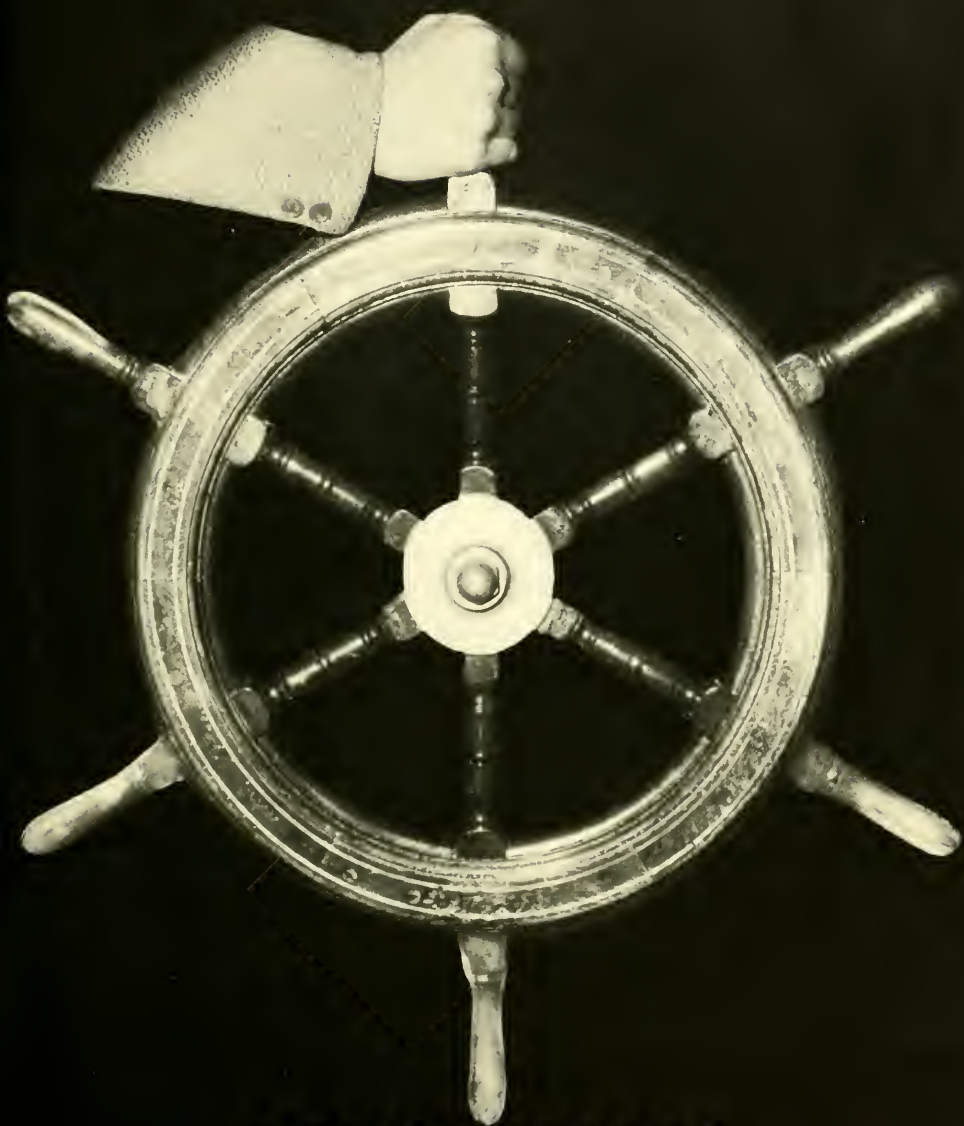

Foreword

We, the Senior Class, present this yearbook as a portrait of the school year 1952-53. We have attempted to record some of the high points of our activities. While looking through this book in the future we hope it will bring back many pleasant memories. It is our desire that our underclassmen will appreciate and love Eastern High as much as we do.

We, the Senior Class of 1953, wish to express our appreciation for Mr. Knute's guidance and encouragement in the past three years, by dedicating this yearbook to him. May he guide and direct other classes in the future as well as he has us. To Mr. Knute, our sponsor, we say thanks!

Raymond Knute

ADMINISTRATION

Our Principal

If you would visit Eastern School you would see this important man. He might be teaching a class, coaching the baseball team or giving us advice!

Some of us met him in our social study class in the seventh grade; the rest of us met him when he became our principal in 1950. We would like to congratulate him on his ability as a leader.

While visiting Eastern you would see this woman pretty often. She is the secretary for the Eastern Schools. I am sure that all the students will agree that Mrs. Smith is willing to help us with any problems that may arise.

Prophecy

A few hours before graduation I was sitting in the living room thinking about my classmates and wondering what they would be doing in 1963, when I drifted off to sleep.

The next thing I knew I was boarding a plane for New York and was being greeted by a friendly stewardess, who to my surprise, was my old classmate Shirley Williams. Shirley told me about her husband Tom Wright and their two little Wrights. She also told me Carolyn Symons was now Mrs. Larry Seagreave. Larry is making a career of the Army and he and Carolyn were in Europe. She said that Jessie Wilson was now a famous lecturer there.

When we arrived in New York I bade Shirley good-bye and good-luck and started on my way. While trying to hail a cab, I collided with a man, who was loaded down with bundles and packages. When I started to apologize I recognized him as Dewayne Baldwin. Dewayne said he had been in New York for three years, and was now the owner of a Men's Clothing Store. Since failing to catch the cab, Dewayne offered to take me to my hotel. The Waldorf-Astoria. I congratulated Dewayne and wished him future success and then departed.

After registering at the hotel the desk clerk called the bell boy and who should it be but Larry McKinney. Larry showed me to my room and we talked of old times. I asked him for recommendations of a hair dresser. He told me of a famous hair stylist and gave me his address. Larry said he would see me during my visit and went back to his job.

I called the hair stylist and made an appointment for the next day at one o'clock P.M. Just as I hung up the phone, a little girl came running into my room calling Mama! Mama! I consoled her and asked her name. Between her sobs she managed to tell me her name was Cathy Keyton and her mother's name was Connie. I called the clerk and he told me a Mrs. Richard Keyton was registered and gave me her room number. I took Cathy to her mother's apartment and it was none other than my old classmate, Connie Woodmansee. Connie told me that Roberta Schaaf was the personal secretary for the President of the United States. She also told me that Rose Gross and her husband, who is a movie producer, are traveling around the world looking for new talent. Connie thanked me for bringing her daughter to her and I departed. After such a surprising day I retired.

I arose early the next morning and went shopping. I was walking down Fifth Ave, when a beautiful hat in the window of a shop caught my eye. Just what I needed, a new hat! I turned around, why Betty, Betty Bougher! What are you doing here? Betty told me she owned the shop and had such a wonderful business that she was planning on retiring in the near future. Betty asked me if I knew our old classmate Susan Feters was an opera star and was appearing at the Metropolitan Opera House next week. I was very happy to hear Susan had reached her life ambition.

Betty and I made a date to have dinner that night and I went on my way to the hair stylist. The Beauty Salon was strictly Ultra Modern and very beautiful. The stylist, who talked with a French accent, called to me. Something about him reminded me of someone I used to know. Then it struck me, why Vernon Fowler, why Vernon, you big fake! Vernon explained his French ways seemed to attract customers. He told me that Gene Hainlen and Larry Stanger now have a TV show of their own and are having great success as a comedy team. I gave Vernon my word not to expose his secret and bade him good-bye. Vernon's experience with home permanents in high school turned out to be useful in his career, didn't it!

Now to catch a cab. Here came a cab around the corner on two wheels. I didn't know if I wanted to ride in it or not; but in N.Y. you can't be choosy. The cab stopped and I entered, that face, where had I seen it; after seeing it for twelve years how could I forget it! Webb Riley! Webb told me he enjoyed driving so much he decided to do it for a living. He also told me he had quite a few little Rileys to drive around now. Webb left me at my hotel and said good-bye.

That night Betty and I decided to go to Ceiros for dinner. A very handsome head waiter came toward us. Why, Betty, look it's John Hopkins! John showed us to our table and while we were dining we noticed two good-looking men own a construction company as soon as they were discharged. They also told us that Amos Kelley was a very suc-

sailors at the next table. Hey, maybe I'm seeing double, they look just alike. Betty tell me quick, could it be---- yes it is! It's Donnie and Ronnie Flook. John gave them our note and they joined us. They told us they planned to cessful farmer in good old Greentown. After a very enjoyable evening talking about our school days in E. H. S. I bade Betty and the twins good-bye and wished Donnie and Ronnie lots of luck in their construction company and left for my hotel.

The next morning I went to a little restaurant for breakfast; a pretty waitress came to take my order---why Martha Broo, you haven't changed a bit, Martha explained to me she was now married and that she and her husband owned the restaurant. Just then Martha's little boy came in and started telling us all about his school teacher who was Peggy Aaron. Peggy always did like children so I imagine she enjoys her job. Martha told me to brace myself, she had something to tell me. She received a letter from Loretta Armfield, who was now principal at E. H. S. and was getting along fine. All I can say is Loretta has surely changed since we went to school. My day was going to be busy so I told Martha good-bye and left.

I was walking down the street when a tap-tap-tap came floating to my ear. The sign in the window read Nancy Talbert Dancing Instructor. Surely it isn't my old classmate, but there is only one way to find out so I went in; she was teaching a class of small girls. She saw me and came over; we talked and talked. Married life hadn't changed her at all; she was as peppy and witty as ever. Nancy told me that Sharon Hensler and Mary Ellen Harvey were registered nurses and were in the Tipton Hospital. I bet they have cured many a man's blood pressure.

Nancy changed clothes and we went to lunch. The floor show had started when we arrived and a very attractive blond girl was singing. The waiter told us it was Joy Gay, the up and coming new star. We had her to join us after her song, and sure enough it was Willa Dene Jarratt! To think, she kept all her talent hidden during our school years. Deanie told us that Eugene McDonnell was working his way up as a band leader in Hollywood and was taking Harry James's place. She also told us that Dick Johnson was the new manager of the New York Giants. I told Deanie I would try to see her again before I left New York. Nancy went back to her dancing and I left.

I was on my way to the bank when I met a policewoman coming out of the police station and it was none other than June Kennedy! Who ever thought June would be a policewoman. She told me that Rita McKee was a truant officer in Kokomo. I guess our experience in our senior year proved to her that "HOOKY DOESN'T PAY." She also told me Weldon Hochstedler was a Private Eye with the ability to catch anything especially pretty girls. I explained to June that I had to go to the bank and told her good-bye.

At the bank I met the cashier who to my pleasant surprise was Joan Alexander. While talking, Joan told me Mary Lou Johnson was a homemaker and had ten wonderful children. She also told me Marilyn Johnson was making a fortune designing clothes for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It was time for Joan to get off work so she invited me to go with her to see a TV program. The first contestant on the program was Jessie Wilson. She was a professor at Indiana University. After the show we talked to her and then I went to the hotel.

While going to my room I saw a very familiar figure coming down the hall, why it's Doris Kee. Doris told me she was an interior decorator and was on her vacation. She asked me if I had heard about Letitia Hite's latest novel entitled, MY YOUNGER YEARS. After our talk Doris departed and I went to my room.

I was reading the newspaper when I noticed the words, Lowell Crow, Editor. His job as editor on our annual did influence his future after all.

From a distance I could hear my name being called Sue, Sue. It was my mother calling me, "If you expect to get your diploma tonight, you had better get up.

Boy! What a dream; wait until I see the kids tonight and tell them about it.

Senior Blu Tri

The Senior Blu Tri Club is made up of the Junior and Senior girls. The Senior Blu Tri conducted it's beautiful candlelight service initiation at the first of the year.

The Blu Tri have as aids to growing personalities, candles, flowers, triangles, and fire. Candles are symbol of the faith, of trust, happiness, and true friendship. Fire is a symbol of light, warmth, and joy. Flowers symbolize beauty, influences pleasure, service, and modesty. Triangle, which symbolizes the three-fold purpose of our club, is body, mind, and spirit. This triangle means to us, Health, Spirit, and Knowledge.

The Senior Blu Tri has sponsored a Masquerade Ball and a Christmas Dance. They also fixed boxes of fruit for elderly and shut-in people. The Blu Tri is buying a sofa bed for the teachers rest room. They also are sponsoring a Variety Show for the High School Choir. The Blu Tri will turn over the money to the choir for a down payment on the new choir robes.

The one thing the girls look forward to is the Blu Tri Banquet which was held on December 16, 1952.

At the end of the year a committee selects an outstanding member. Her name is engraved on a gold plaque which hangs in the study hall.

The Junior Blu Tri is made up of Freshman and Sophomore girls. There are forty-one members in the club this year. The aim of the club is to better the lives of the girls and to help other people.

The meetings are held twice a month and sometimes are held at the noon hour. Refreshments are served each meeting by appointments of the President.

At the opening of the meetings the members stand and repeat together our code:

Gracious in manner	Seeing the beautiful
Impartial in judgement	Eager for knowledge
Ready for service	Reverent to God
Loyal to friends	Victorious over self
Reaching toward the best	Ever dependable
Earnest in purpose	Sincere at all times.

Their project for the year will be getting drapes, blinds, and a bedspread for the teachers rest room.

Hi-Y

Hi-Y

The Hi-Y is made up of any high school boy who has a desire to belong to the club. The freshman boys are eligible for membership. The purpose of this organization is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character.

The installation of officers is a routine that is of little significance to the successful candidates upon assuming the obligations of their various offices. Realizing the apparent need of some procedure that might serve to enlist a serious and sympathetic attitude toward the responsibilities which successful club officers must face,

They had their usual Chili Supper, Formal Initiation, and the Father and Son banquet. They sponsored the clean-up drive and the Basketball schedules.

The Hi-Y Motto:

Clean living
Clean scholarship
Clean sports
Clean speech

Dramatic Club

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club has reorganized again this year as it has the many years before. This society is Lagniappe, as symbolized by the two-faced figure in the picture. The motto of the club is, "All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players; They have their exits and their entrances; and one man in his time plays many parts."

There were about forty-five members of the Dramatic Club this year. Starting from the beginning they have undergone many projects. The speech classes have given pantomimes, read stories to children, and acted out short skits. The most outstanding work done by the club this year has been in the presentation of "Elmer and the Lovebug," which was given Feb. 10, for the Jackson Farm Bureau; "Crook Catchers," given by the Juniors; and the Senior Class Play, "We Shook The Family Tree."

The Lions Club of Greentown is giving an Outstanding Athlete award to one Senior boy who has excelled in athletic ability. The Senior Choir this year consisted of seventy members. They had a very busy year. They gave the Christmas program for the P. T. A. and the High School. It was a dramatization entitled "Our Lady's Juggler."

Every year the choir sings in two festivals away from home. One was the Four Way Festival which was held at Clay of Miami this year, and the other was the District Festival which was held at Kokomo.

Any choir taking part in the District Festival is eligible to send choir members to sing in the All-State Chorus at Indianapolis in October. The members chosen to go this year were Rebecca Streeter, Susan Feters, Jewell Brunner, Sally Stewart, Dewayne Baldwin, Eugene McDonnell, Larry LaRowe and Max Hensler.

The choir sang again this year for the Good Friday services. These services are held each year in one of the churches in the community.

A Spring Festival was held this year in connection with the band, here at Eastern School.

A girl's sextette and a boy's quartette, chosen from the choir were kept busy all winter entertaining at the Lions Club, the churches and P. T. A.

Eugene McDonnell, a tenor member of the choir, was the only tenor in the whole District this year who placed first in the District Contest held at Kokomo.

The choir is very eager to get new choir robes. They are working to get the necessary funds for this. The Blu-Tri sponsored a Variety Show in February, the proceeds of which went to the choir to help on buying robes.

Eastern High School Band

The Eastern High School Band, under the direction of Mr. Vernon Crouch, has been quite active throughout the past school year and the preceding summer.

Beginning the first week of June the band played ten weekly concerts from the new portable band-stand which was placed just north of the Main and Meridian streets intersection. These concerts were sponsored by the local businessmen.

Each night of the 4-H Fair, the band played a fifteen minute concert and also played for the Horse Show which was presented one night of the Fair. Another Fair activity was that of sponsoring and running a food stand on the grounds. For this activity the help of several very cooperative parents was enlisted.

The beginning of school again saw the band out on the street learning to distinguish left feet from right feet and many other things such as Drum Major signals and playing on the march. We played at all but one of our home basketball games and presented floor shows at two games.

A very successful fish fry was given soon after Christmas vacation and with the money earned, together with that which was made at the Fair stand and donated by P. T. A. and businessmen, we were able to add six badly needed uniforms; hats for the majorettes and several other pieces of uniform equipment. There is still enough left to pay for transportation and entry fees to the band contests.

Plans for the remainder of the school year include participation in the Four-Way Music Festival, the District Music Festival and the District Band Contest. The State Band Contest is a definite goal, of course, but our rating at the District will determine whether or not that goal is attained.
